

Bjørn Bjørnstad

Bjørn Bjørnstad is Director for Inspection and Land-use Planning Department at the Norwegian Environment Agency. He is responsible for management of County Governors, Inspection activities, coordination environmental crime, legal issues on pollution and climate change, environmental data management, land-use planning.

Bjørnstad has a M.Sc. in Geology from University of Oslo. After 8 years running a small consulting business in structural and reservoir geology in Norway and Germany, he started at the Norwegian Environment Agency on issues contaminated land and contaminated sediments. He took later a position as investigator at the National Authority for Investigation and Prosecution of Environmental Crime. Returning to the Agency, Inspection department, first as head of section and later as director of department. He has participated in a number of international working groups under OECD, NATO and different EU-organizations.

Bjørnstad has 10 years experience as director on different subjects and as a member of top executives in the Norwegian Environment Agency.